There are many Archetype Characters in Fantasy books and films. There are examples of these characters all over the gallery, take some time to explore and maybe come up with a character of your own. Make sure to consider the following?

1. Which Archetype is your character?
2. What is the name of your character?
3. How old is your character?
4. Where is your character from?
5. What does your character wear?
6. What does your character do?
7. What would your character bring on an adventure?
8. What kind of adventure would your character go on?

After you have thought about these questions, draw your character on the opposite page.

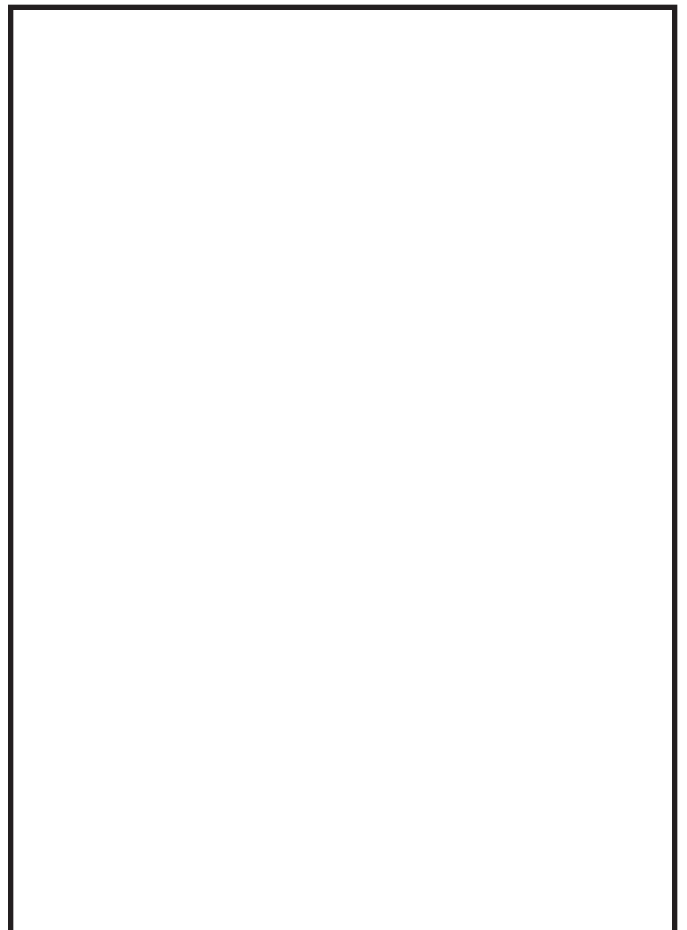

The Fantasy Gallery is made up of different areas and rooms, each themed and decorated with a distinctive aspect of the Fantasy Genre. Think about these questions as you explore the gallery and artifacts.

What are the themes of each room and do the artifacts inside match the theme?

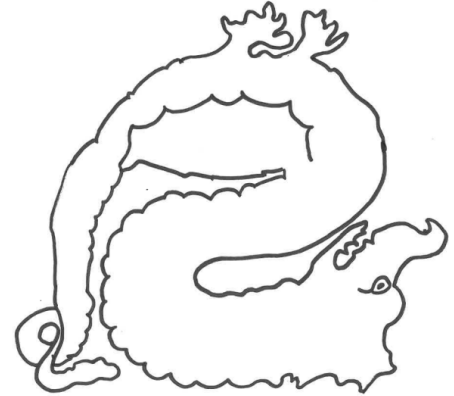

1. Do the materials used for each theme make a difference in how the area is presented?
2. How does each area make you feel?
3. Do any of the areas feel calmer or more energetic than the others?
4. Which room is your favorite and why?
5. Would you change anything about how the gallery is presented? How would you change it and why?

Thinking about how something is presented can be as important as what is on display. You can carry this on to the other galleries in this museum as well as any other adventures you may go on.

Draco Constellation - Persia

Draco Constellation - English

Adalina, our sleeping dragon is from the realms of Middle Earth and European folklore. But dragons appear in legends and stories from all around the world, like the representations of the Draco constellations from Europe and the Persian empire. Color these dragons and then draw your own dragon to inspire your own legendary adventures.

My dragon's name is _____.
